

The website will have two main public targets:

1. Whomever will be interested in the details of such a remote developers course

They can browse this website and go through our reviews and thoughts on the course, check out our learning curve by going through our projects and get a deeper glimpse at our learning tools and interest by shuffling our research videos and links.

2. Us from the future

Three years from now, won't you wanna look back and check out your recipes website? ... I think you might.
